It's good convertible weather unless you're driving through one part of town.

The smell from the landfill in Bridgeton is so bad that I saw an add on Craig's list from a car owner selling his convertible.

He wrote that it's a great car unless you're driving through Bridgeton. His point was the smell is so bad and so common that everyone would understand what he's talking about.

I know the company operating the landfill have reached a deal but let's face it. It wouldn't stink if we didn't have so much trash.

I've never given much thought to how much trash I throw away. The phrase, carbon footprint doesn't mean much to someone who grew up in the Gordon Gekko era of, 'Greed is good.'

But maybe I should start paying more attention to how much garbage we're getting tossing away.

Even if you blame the guys running the landfill, the trash has to come from somewhere.

I'm JB and that's "The Way It Oughta Be".
